Back Nazis Across The Danube

German Armies In a Mass Flight Out Of Balkans—Desire Peace

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(P)—A British radio French-language broadcast reported by the OWI said tonight that Marshal Tito's partisan troops had entered Belgrade.

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Sunday, Sept. 3.—(P)—The Red army hurled the Germans across the Danube river on a 65-mile front southeast of Bucharest yesterday and reached the Bulgarian frontier on a winding 150-mile front extending inland from the Black sea coast to the big river port of Giurgiu, Moscow announced last night.

In a Balkan disaster surpassing that suffered by the Axis at Stalingrad, the Germans and former pro-Axis Romanians lost 418,600 men killed or captured between Aug. 20 and Aug. 31, a special Moscow communique announced. Of those captured in that period, 97,100 were Germans.

The Romanian campaign casualties brought to 1,200,486 the number of Axis troops killed or captured in the overall summer campaign begun in the east on June 23, on the basis of Moscow announcements.

Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army captured 70 towns and villages in clearing the north bank of the Danube between Oltenita and Fetesti, the communique said.

Farther east, beyond the curving Danube, Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukraine army captured 60 localities, reaching the Bulgarian frontier on the plains of Dobruja between the river and the Black sea.

Bulgaria was in a critical position, trying to ease out of the war with a declaration of "complete neutrality" but told by Moscow that she must declare war on Germany and fight the Axis. There were no indications yet that Red army troops had crossed into the country.

Rioting In Sofia
Moscow reports told of rioting in Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, with pro-Russians demanding war on Germany. The Bagrianov government had fallen, and a Bulgarian armistice commission in Cairo was awaiting authority to negotiate with Britain and the United States on armistice terms. Bulgaria never had declared war on Russia.

The Soviet communique did not tell of the Red army's swift westward progress toward the Yugoslav frontier, but dispatches said the Russians were within 150 miles of the frontier, driving toward a junction with Marshal Tito's partisan forces and toward Hungary and southern Germany.

Both Budapest and Bucharest reports agreed, moreover, that Romanian troops had penetrated into northern Transylvania, beyond the Carpathian mountains whose southern arm protects the westward drive of Malinovsky's troops.

The anti-Axis Romanians were attacking with the aid of Russian troops also in the Oltuz and Ghimes passes to the northeast, Berlin and Budapest said. The Hungarians admitted "a critical situation" had been created because of this cracking of the Carpathian mountain wall.

Officers Seek Man Claiming To Be A Doctor

Reported To Have Told Women He Was To Examine Them

Police and highway patrol officers for the past several days have been looking for a man, believed to be a stranger in Sedalia, who has represented himself as a doctor, and as such, has approached several women in their homes, telling them he has been sent by their husbands, to make a physical examination. In all instances, as reported to the police the man was ordered away, and the police notified. It was also reported he had attempted to approach several children.

The man, described as about 55 years of age, is said to be driving a black coach about 1933 or 1935 model.

A 17-year-old girl, nurses' helper, off duty for the afternoon, was approached by the man as she was returning to her home about 2:00 o'clock Friday afternoon. She was walking near Thirteenth street and Ohio avenue, she reported to police officers, when a car was driven up by the side of the curb, and the occupant asked if she knew where Mr. Johnson lived. She replied she did not live in that neighborhood, and could not tell him.

"You are a nurse, aren't you?" he asked, calling attention to the fact she was wearing a uniform. She replied she was a helper, and he introduced himself as "Dr. Jones, of the Warrensburg Clinic." He told the young woman he was on his way to the Katy shops to dress an injured hand, and asked if she could go with him to direct him to the shops and help him. She said she would and got in the car with him, riding in the front seat, as, she stated, there seemed to be a number of articles in the back seat.

At the Katy shops, the report as made to police, the man left the car for a very short time, but probably did not enter the building, returning saying Mr. Johnson had gone to his home, and they would have to go there to dress the hand. The girl objected at first, stating her mother would be waiting for her. "We won't be but a very short time," (Please turn to Page 4, Column 2)

J. B. Greer Is Killed By Brother

Shooting At The Evans Beer Place Saturday Night At 10:30 O'clock

James Bishop Greer, about 32 years old, ex-convict on parole for robbery of the Deal Grocery, Sixteenth street and Missouri, was killed instantly about 10:30 admitted the shooting when shot by his brother, Claude Greer, at the Charley Evans beer joint, 104 South Washington avenue. His brother admitted shooting when questioned by Chief of Police Anson Fennell and Night Chief of Police John J. O'Brien.

No reason was given by Greer for shooting his brother other than he had started at him with a knife. Greer said there was no ill feeling between them other than "J. B." was mad at him for not going back to Kansas City with him to work.

Greer said that he was in the place, "tending to my own business," when "J. B." walked in. "He pulled a knife and started at me and I backed away into the bar room. I saw a pistol on the shelf and picked it up and started into the hall. 'J. B.' was standing at the foot of the stairway and lifted his arm back as if to strike me and I shot him. I believe I fired once. That's all I know about what happened," he declared.

The bullet pierced the victims' heart.

Arthur Case, 1502 South Prospect avenue, who was standing in the hallway, said that he didn't see who shot Greer, but that he whirled and fell to the floor. He said he didn't know what happened, it occurred so quick.

Reports Soldier Cut
Later Claude Greer told Chief Fennell, that a friend of "J. B." told him that he had cut a soldier, and quoted him as saying that he probably "cut three or four niggers." It was after this that "J. B." is alleged to have started towards Claude, according to his statement.

The Negro who was cut was identified as Pfc. Theodore Moore, of Section E, Sedalia Army Air Base. The soldier went to police headquarters where he was questioned. He said a car made a "U" turn at Main street and Lamine avenue and as it pulled up near him a man got out and slashed him across his back. He was treated at the Army Aid Station in the old post office building.

It was believed that Greer was in the car, and either he or the other occupant cut the soldier.

Claude Greer Arrested
Claude Greer was arrested by the police and is being held at police headquarters pending further questioning. Greer's father, George Greer, 100 West Jefferson street, was at police headquarters and had little information to divulge which might give the police any leads as to what the shooting was over.

Greer is survived by his father, his brother, Claude Greer. Both who live at the Jefferson street address, Roy Greer, who resides at Second street and Ohio avenue, and Leonard Greer, who resides on Engineer avenue.

Dr. W. T. Bishop, coroner, was called to the Evans place and viewed the body, then ordered it taken to McLaughlin Funeral Chapel. Dr. Bishop indicated an inquest would be held, but did not set any date for it.

Former U. S. Senator Norris Dies At Home

Independent Of Nebraska Was In Congress 40 Years

McCOOK, Neb., Sept. 2.—(P)—Former Senator George W. Norris, 83, one of the nation's foremost liberals and a veteran of 40 years in congress, died at his home this afternoon.

Norris, "father" of the Tennessee Valley Authority and author of the "lame duck" amendment, had not regained full consciousness since suffering a cerebral hemorrhage at his home Aug. 29. He was partially paralyzed by the hemorrhage.

Public funeral services will be held at the First Congregational church here at 3 p. m. (MWT) Monday. Dr. Bryant Drake, president of Doane College of Crete, Neb., will deliver the sermon. Burial, in the family plot in memorial park here, will be in charge of the Masonic lodge. The six pallbearers are McCook residents and longtime friends of Norris.

Besides Mrs. Norris, his three daughters were at his home when he died.

Norris had rallied the day after the hemorrhage and was given a "good chance" to recover. But thereafter he weakened steadily and had to be nourished by intravenous injections.

The white-haired lawmaker, known as an insurgent because of his disregard for party lines in fighting for his beliefs, had only recently accepted the honorary chairmanship of the National Citizens' Political Action Committee with the declaration "I intend to do as much as I can."

He recently had declared it would be a "tragedy" if President Roosevelt were denied a fourth term.

An independent since breaking with the Republican party in 1922, Norris had lived in relative quiet here since "the people I love" rejected his 1942 bid for a sixth term in the senate.

"Closer To End"
Before suffering the hemorrhage Norris had appeared at some public functions and was normally active. But on his 83rd birthday July 11 he said "I never expected to live this long; this birthday only means that it is getting closer to the end."

Norris, one of six senators to vote against United States entry into the First World War, believed lasting peace after the current conflict could come only by complete defeat and unconditional surrender of our enemies, their complete disarmament, and education of their peoples in the ways of peace. His views on peace terms had been published but Norris declared on the eve of his 83rd birthday (Please turn to Page 4, Column 1)

Sgt. Leiter entered service on December 31, 1942 and has been overseas since February of this year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Leiter, 1501 East Sixth street.

Finland Is To Quit The War

Germans Have Decided To Make A Withdrawal

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
LONDON, Sunday, Sept. 3.—(P)—"Finland is getting out of the war and the Germans have agreed to withdraw from the country, Premier Hantti Hackzell announced last night.

"We do not know what terms the Soviets will impose, but they have not demanded unconditional surrender," he said in disclosing that Russia already has been asked to grant an armistice.

Speaking on the radio after a meeting of the Finnish parliament, Hackzell declared:

"The military and political situation made it necessary for us to try to find a solution. In April the situation was not so bad, but as a result of the Soviet offensive in June our forces had to be withdrawn."

It was in April that Finland rejected Russian peace terms as too stern. President Risto Ryti and his government resigned early in August and Finland's famous old Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim became president and named Hackzell premier on Aug. 8. Ever since then, Finland has been reported seeking some way of escaping from the war.

Speaking directly to his countrymen tonight, Hackzell said "the military situation also has become worse for Germany, which now has to use all her available forces for the defense of her homeland."

"Many German forces no longer believe in victory."

"Therefore, a new phase has begun in German-Finnish relations. It is not possible for Germany to give us sufficient help to stay in the war."

Approach For Armistice
Hackzell said nothing about a formal Finnish break with Germany such as had been predicted early in Stockholm dispatches, but said former President Ryti's agreement with Germany was "no longer valid" and that Ryti was personally responsible for it.

He said Finland had approached Russia for an armistice after "the United States was informed and had no objections."

He concluded, "we have shown our desire for peace and taken the first step. . . . Today's decision means a sacrifice to an extent which we don't yet know, but no sacrifice is too great for our country. We must stand unanimously behind Marshal Mannerheim and the government."

Stockholm dispatches said the Germans had been given until Sept. 15 to clear out of Finland and that this withdrawal and a break in relations with Germany were prerequisites demanded by Russia for any peace negotiations.

Hackzell's speech indicated the Germans had agreed to withdraw or were withdrawing voluntarily to defend the Reich.

Stockholm said there was no indication as yet whether the German were leaving Finland or if force would be necessary.

Two Columns of U. S. Troops Move Into Belgium Saturday

Fifth Army Takes Pisa In A New Drive

Storm Heights On East With British Forces

By GEORGE TUCKER

ROME, Sept. 2.—(P)—The American Fifth army lashed out in a new offensive today, burst across the Arno in a wide front, seized Pisa and stormed dominating heights on the east in concert with a new drive by the famed British Eighth army through a 20-mile hole in the Gothic line.

As the whole Italian front flamed into action, the vaunted Gothic line—which Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring had ordered held for three more weeks to hold open a route of escape through the Brenner pass—appeared crumbling on both the east and west.

Taking advantage of German preoccupation with the smashing offensive of the British, Canadian and Poles at the Adriatic end of the line, the Americans first launched a flanking movement across the Arno.

Threatened with encirclement, the Germans hastily evacuated historic Pisa, famed for its leaning tower. Kesselring had ordered Pisa firmly held and the Nazis there had rained artillery fire on the attacking Americans who had held the city's southern outskirts on the south side of the Arno since July 22.

The special announcement of Pisa's fall said Americans had driven four miles beyond the Serchio river.

The twin offensives landed in the enemy camp with unexpected violence, but the Germans reacted quickly and hurled fresh troops into the struggle, which threatens to roll them back to the Po river, their last good natural defense line in Northern Italy.

The door to the Po is open and the complete destruction of all German forces in Italy now become simply a matter of time, a spokesman declared at Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's Allied headquarters.

While Field Marshal Kesselring's left wing crumbled before British blows along the Adriatic, the Fifth hurled the Arno at many points along the 45 miles from Florence westward to the sea.

Negro troops of the 92nd U. S. division, making their first appearance in the battle line, stormed up the southeast slopes of Monte Pisano, from whose frowning heights the enemy has lobbed shells into the American lines during the long stalemate on this front.

Simultaneously, American-born Japanese in another Fifth army column swung across the river and occupied the southwestern slopes. The Pisano mass lies east and north of Pisa, western anchor of the Allied lines.

CHARLES A. WELLS

Turnin' ghis interest and abilities increasingly to the dramatic modern presentation of the Christian message, Charles A. Wells has innovated a timely new approach to the old story. Upon the suggestions and the assistance of many prominent Christian laymen and pastors, Mr. Wells organized the conferences on Christ and World Need, which have become one of the most influential and successful community religious enterprises in the current national scene. Mr. Wells will interpret and translate many of his collected propaganda posters which he has secured from Germany, Russia, and the Far East. His main presentation of the evening will be reinforced with a large cartoon which he will draw as he speaks. An open forum will conclude the evening program for any of the audience who desire to remain and ask questions and make comments on the theme presented.

Will Attend Club Meetings
Mr. Wells will speak during the week at the Lions Club and the Kiwanis Club on Wednesday and Thursday noon and will also present a series of radio addresses each morning at 8 a. m. on K. D. R. O. He will visit six churches Sunday morning during the Sunday school and worship hours giving ten minute talks on the theme of the conference. He will visit the First Methodist, the Fifth Street Methodist, First Christian, East Sedalia Baptist, Epworth Methodist, and Broadway Presbyterian churches.

The topics of the conference for the other evening meetings at the high school auditorium will be: Monday "The Inside Story of Nazi Persecutions," Tuesday "Labor and Race Relations in Tomorrow's World," Wednesday "Love, Laughter, Death and Religion in Russia," Thursday "Hitler and Gandhi," and Friday "The Secrets of a Thrilling Life."

Council Will Meet On Tuesday Night

The City Council will meet in regular session at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night, September 5, instead of on Monday night, which is Labor Day. At this meeting the proposed retail merchants tax ordinance will be read for the second time.

According to plans made at the last meeting the ordinance will be read for the second time at this meeting, then for the third and final time, with a vote to follow, at a later meeting, probably Monday night, September 18.

Virtual End To Battle Of France As War Carried To 11 Miles Of Reich

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sunday, Sept. 3.—(P)—Two American columns rolled swiftly into Belgium yesterday, capturing the seven-way road hub of Tournai within 46 miles of the capital at Brussels, and other U. S. armored forces to the south-east rolled almost to the German frontier in a week-end of sensational gains virtually ending the battle of France.

Tournai, five miles inside the little country, was taken quickly as flimsy enemy resistance was brushed aside and the Yanks sped on toward the famous Flanders battlefields.

Some 50 miles southeast of Tournai, the second American column captured Soignes, six miles inside the Belgian frontier and 80 miles southwest of the Belgian fortress city of Liege.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead, who entered Belgium with advance units, filed a dispatch from Soignes in which he mentioned the other American spearhead at Tournai.

As the Germans fled Brussels, the war thundered nearer to the Reich and already the din of battle may be echoing in the Saar, for the Germans said strong American forces had knifed through Nazi-annexed Lorraine to within 11 miles of the border.

Laughing, cheering Belgians, emerging from four years of Nazi captivity, met the forces of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army as they streamed along the roads.

Disrupt Resistance
Most of the Germans had pulled out hastily last night, and the resistance the enemy put up as the Americans drove across the frontier was scattered quickly.

(Swedish railway officials said Berlin had advised the Belgian frontier was closed, another report from Sweden said all German civilians were being evacuated from districts west of the Rhine, and a German Transocean agency reporter said numerous villages "within range of the Maginot line" were being emptied of civilians.

(Radio Atlantic, a clandestine German-language station whose location has never been disclosed, said American tanks had crossed the Reich border at two places and the German civilian population was in mass flight along jammed highways as in the days when France fell. It also said Americans had crossed into Belgium and Luxembourg.)

Flood Lowlands
The Germans were reported clearing out of Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg after flooding the northern lowlands in a forlorn hope of stemming the Allied tide—and the Belgian capital of Brussels was no more than 65 miles in front of the onrushing British Second army.

Pilots raking the enemy line of retreat reported the 15th German (Please turn to Page 1, Column 1)

Attack Is Made On Constable

Constable Forrest Poindexter, Saturday night shortly before 11 o'clock was beaten by two men at Third street and the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad, in which Poindexter suffered the fracture of his right ankle. The two parties who were at the scene disappeared into the M-K-T depot and departed by a rear door.

Delbert Arnold, Twenty-Sixth street and Washington avenue, driver of a Sedalia City bus, told police he pulled up behind the car in which Poindexter was riding, and while there Poindexter got out in front of the car where the fight took place. He said one of the men also cursed him as he departed toward the depot.

A driver, who was in the car backed into the front of the bus causing the bumpers to become locked, and he, likewise disappeared from the scene.

Police called, found Poindexter in the back seat of the car. Joe Gresham, police officer, noticed that Poindexter appeared to be suffering from an injury and took him to the hospital, where it was discovered his right ankle was fractured.

A description of the parties has been given the police and arrests are expected to be made.

Crossroads Comment

For Whom The Bell Tolls—

"School-days, school-days, dear old golden rule days."

Words of Will D. Cobb, American song-writer, 1907.

Few children or adults are unacquainted with the tune. And most connect reference to "golden rule days" with the biblical axiom: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so unto them: for this is the law and the prophets."

But Cobb's use of the expression "golden rule" refers to mathematics, not to the verse from Matthew. The earliest known use of the words "Golden Rule" was by Robert Recorde, English mathematician and writer, in 1540, who wrote: "The rule of proportion which, for excellency, is called the 'Golden Rule.'"

Nevertheless it is not out of order to apply the popular definition of the golden rule to the activities of approaching school days; forget about its mathematical application and remember the biblical injunction.

An intensely interesting field of exploration is that of child and adult psychology found in the modern public school system.

After a summer's vacation, teachers and children are going back to school this week. A great many of both will return carrying chips on their shoulders; children defiant of encroachment on their rights, teachers determined to maintain their authoritative dignity. Thus a fertile setting for ultimate clash of temperaments. Even Napoleon was whipped because he carried a chip on his shoulder.

In the approaching resumption of relationships between pupil and teacher it is timely to suggest consideration of the application of the golden rule as a morale builder rather than a mathematical pronouncement.

Old philosophers put it in an understandable way, too: "You must expect to be treated by others as you yourself have treated them."

Modern America no longer subscribes to the mode of "Readin' and ritin' and rithmetic, taught to the tune of a hick'ry stick." There is equal disapproval of teaching to the tune of a barbed tongue as well as smart jacks antics and tantrums of children who ought to have their rear ends attended to at home with the hick'ry stick removed long ago from the school room.

Go East and Stay In Missouri—

When the classes in geography are far enough along studying the map of Missouri they might consider the experience of Editor Frank Briggs, of Macon, during a state political campaign tour. He said: "One day I was amazed when I asked how to get out of a town in Dunklin county for another town. 'You'll have to go east,' the man said. 'If you go north, south or west you'll go into Arkansas!' That town is Senath—check it on your map and you'll see that my informant was correct."

German Mass-Murders Nauseating—

The week has brought further nauseating stories of German mass-murder camps and torturous devices practised upon the French people.

These stories are not fiction, inspired to create an emotional state of hatred against the Germans. Our armies are winning the war without that sort of barbaric stimulation.

Conclusive evidence is piling up against the revolting, loathsome methods of the Germans who cremated hundreds of thousands of innocent people in Poland, collecting their clothing and personal effects to send back to Germany.

Most of those captured Nazis who confess knowledge of the operations of mass-murder camps stoutly assert they had nothing to do with the human slaughter houses. But nothing so evident could exist without the German people knowing about it. Next we will hear Hitler, Goebbels, Goering, Ribbentrop, Himmler and all of the Nazi tripe disclaiming responsibility, seeking haven in some neutral country.

We are beginning to see the cumulative effects on the mentality of entire races of people who are schooled to disbelief in the existence of a Supreme Being.

Dante had a word for it:

"Pride, Envy, Avarice—these are the sparks have set on fire the hearts of all men."

Planned Wireless Station Here—

Forty years ago Sedalia was destined to become a major link in a wireless telegraph chain. It was one of those ghostly enterprises preceding the amazing development, years later, of the radio as we know it today.

On the front page of the Sedalia Democrat August 27, 1904 a story was told from information obtained from James M. Offield and James Story, real estate agents. A representative of the American DeForest Wireless Telegraph company had come to town seeking a site for one of the company's stations. Already purchased in Kansas City was a tract 260 feet square at Twenty-sixth and Washington, mentioned in the Kansas City Star of that date. A 216-foot mast was to be erected. Other stations in the chain were to be at St. Louis, Springfield, Ill., and Chicago.

The reason Sedalia was chosen for a site was because the wireless waves were not supposed to carry with sufficient impulse over a distance of 200 miles. Thus the Queen City of the Prairies was to be a booster link between Kansas City and St. Louis.

The ultimate fate of the project remains unexplained unless some old-timer can throw light upon it. The station was never established here.

Beware of the Stranger Seeking Alms—

There's something immortal about soliciting charitable donations.

Periodically Sedalia business houses and residences are visited by persons wearing a badge or carrying a cup presumably in the role of official receivers of contributions.

All the way from a dime to a dollar brings a beam and a God bless you; otherwise a glinty gleam and the definite suspicion that you have been classified as a heel.

Now not all of the charity solicitors are that way. Some travel legitimately and have credentials to prove it. But there are pan-handlers on the move whose only charity is raising funds for a short beer, if there is anything such as a short beer these days.

The point is that very often itinerant solicitors land in town for a few hours, flit from door to door collecting money. Before a complaint can be lodged by some suspicious person, the fakery is on their way out of town.

If any charitable enterprise is worthy of support, then it is deserving enough to have official recognition and thereby serve as protection to generous Sedalians against imposition.

The Chamber of Commerce has a system to discourage soliciting chicanery. Those who propose to go about town collecting money are asked to contact the Chamber and obtain recognition. If their project is a worthy one upon investigation, then the solicitor will be given a letter of endorsement.

This plan is defeated at once if Sedalians do not ask the solicitor to display his Chamber of Commerce credentials. Therefore the townsfolk are reminded again that their best protection against imposters is to demand the showing of credentials. If this is not done then the community invites an invasion of beggars who have a way of broadcasting to their fellow hocus-pocus artists where the sucker-fields are located.

Proper To Ask For Credentials—

Soft-hearted Sedalians might as well begin to prepare now for an era of door-knockers. This does not necessarily mean they must become hard-hearted or inhospitable or unsympathetic toward every solicitor's mission.

But Sedalians do have a right to ask for the showing of credentials. Those who resent this request should have the door closed in their faces. For one reason there are too many who invade homes under misrepresentation. Housewives and children lay themselves open to actual possibilities of peril when they welcome into their homes every stranger who might be a swindler or something worse.

Promoters of all sorts of questionable schemes are already on the loose. Many of these tricksters will soon begin to come around under the guise of being ex-soldiers returned from the battlefronts. They will carry fraudulent papers to prove it. And if there is any suspicion that a Chamber of Commerce paper is not authentic, then the housewife should immediately call the Chamber of Commerce and obtain verbal supporting evidence that the door knocker is on the up and up.

In this manner crooks will soon learn that Sedalia is an unhealthy place to attempt to victimize the citizens.

Tough Going In Those Days—

Conversational themes at future veteran conventions will undergo a bit of modification when the World War II lads return home. The bewildered accounts of the weeks and months-long terrific battles around Belleau Woods, the Argonne Forest, Chateau Thierry and St. Mihiel will probably inspire some smiling comments from the veterans of 1914 who romped and raced across the same battlefields in a matter of hours. Oldsters will probably remind the youngsters they, too, could have done as well if they'd had the kind of equipment used in the 1914 battles, not to mention the preliminary battle training. Yes sir, the oldsters will have a lot of good arguments ready for the returning fighters of World War II.

Death Takes A Substantial Citizen—

When a man lies down to die in acknowledgment of his finished course and bestows upon his survivors the heritage of a good name and lifelong family devotion, he leaves behind something vastly more important than material possessions acquired by business success.

A man who lives for others, heaping upon them the benefactions of good conduct and an example of substantial citizenship leaves this life in peace. His attributes take on immortality and influence the lives of unnumbered thousands.

During 45 years in Sedalia Leon H. Archias added a stone of character next to each stone in the foundation of his business. Death cannot obliterate his personality nor the kindly regard so many townsmen had for him.

So They Say

The Americans, British and Canadians do not advance until they believe they have smashed everything with their bombs and heavy arms. Our opponents conduct this war by the security method.—Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge, Nazi commander in France.

For the first time in five long years, the hope exists that the end of the war is in sight. It will be delayed only if any of us at home—workers, employer, farmer and public servant—slackens the pace.—Eric A. Johnston, president U. S. C. of C.

Racial prejudices will persist in spite of scientific demonstrations that there are no hierarchies of physical, mental or cultural ability in human races and no rank lists of virtues and vice.—Dr. Ernest A. Hooten, Harvard U. anthropologist.

If strikes impede the war effort—and every strike is a tank-trap in the path of our invading armies—the resentment against strikes, already so marked among soldiers today, will not die down when they return.—Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Russians are the best disciplined people I have met in all my travels over here.—Lt. Timothy A. Gunn, shuttle bomber pilot.

These French people co-operated with us only when a machine gun was at their backs. Laborers swung their picks once and then had to fill their pipes.—German officer captured at Cherbourg.

Merry-go-round

. . . by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Camp Lee, Va., recently witnessed one of the most unusual bonfires in the history of this war, when 7,000 fatigue uniforms were heaped into a big pile by the military and burned.

They were burned because it was claimed the uniforms had become a fire hazard. They had been lying unused in a warehouse for so long that, according to Capt. George Howson, the dye in the green herringbone twill jackets made a chemical reaction with a solution put on the uniforms to protect against poison gas. This caused the uniforms to rot.

They had been stacked on top of each other for a long time as surplus. Furthermore, it is estimated that 100,000 other pieces of fatigue clothing are in the same condition.

In contrast, far-sighted Foreign Economic Administrator Leo Crowley has pioneered a unique system of saving old army uniforms. He has been remaking them into clothing for the relief of European civilians in the liberated countries.

During the early part of the war, the army brought back from overseas tons of old field jackets, worn-out socks, shirts spattered with mud and blood, put them in bales and sold them as rags on the junk market. Now, instead, Crowley is taking over these discarded uniforms and has transformed a Park avenue skating rink into a second-hand clothes factory where he makes new clothes out of old.

A pair of socks worn out at the heel are transformed into wrist-lets. Two discarded and torn shirts are put together into one. A field jacket with one arm shot off is made into a vest. These rebuilt clothes are then turned over to UNRRA for distribution in the liberated countries and Russia. Formerly, clothes were purchased new by UNRRA at a much greater cost to the taxpayer.

Sacred Political Pledge

Among Speaker Sam Rayburn's cronies in the House of Representatives, a political pledge is as binding as a death-bed promise. Or at least, Sam himself so regards it. If he didn't, the make-up of the present House committee probing campaign expenditures might be different.

When the committee was being appointed, fair-minded Rep. Clinton Anderson, New Mexican Democrat, asked Rayburn not to put him on the committee as chairman unless he was given a working majority.

"I am not going to conduct a witch-hunting probe," the tall New Mexican told Rayburn. "This has got to be a fair and impartial inquiry. And it can't be if you appoint Gathings, reactionary Arkansas Democrat, who will work hand in glove with the Republicans."

"I promised Gene Cox of Georgia I'd appoint Gathings to that committee," Rayburn replied, "but I'll ask Gene if he won't release me from the promise."

However, the reactionary Cox, knowing what Rayburn wanted, suddenly disappeared. He didn't come around the capitol and couldn't be found at home.

So Rayburn, to whom a promise is sacred and who is one of Cox's best friends, felt he could not keep Congressman Gathings off the committee without a release from Cox. Even when Anderson came to Rayburn and told him the room in the Wardman Park hotel where Cox was hiding out, the speaker declined to act. But since the time was getting short, Rayburn called Gathings into his office and, in the presence of Anderson, gave him a lecture.

"Now, if I put you on this committee," he said, "it's got to be understood that you're not going to vote with the Republicans. It's got to be understood that, on matters of procedure, you must vote with the Democrats. On matters of detailed fact, naturally, your conscience will be your guide."

The Arkansas alleged Democrat did not demur. He sat silent. Speaker Rayburn took this to mean assent.

Fifteen minutes later, the committee held its first meeting, with Democrat Anderson of New Mexico in the chair and with alleged Democrat Gathings of Arkansas on the committee. But on the very first vote, Gathings voted with the Republicans to start a witch-hunting probe of a Los Angeles publisher who sold copies of John R. Carlson's book, "Under Cover."

Little Business War Casualties

How tough the problem of peacetime conversion is going to be for small business is illustrated by butchers and the neon light industry.

In Philadelphia alone, a total of 1,700 retail meat dealers went out of business when rationing came in. There wasn't enough meat to handle; their assistants were drafted. Many of the butchers drifted into war jobs or enlisted in the army. After the war, a lot will want to stage a comeback but won't have the money to get started.

Along with the butchers, the neon light manufacturers also took a bad economic licking. Because of the dim-out along the coasts, neon lights were forbidden in hundreds of cities. In addition, the materials going into neon lights were needed for military lights, radio sets. As a result, a total of 3,500 neon light manufacturers closed.

They were silent casualties of the war. No obituary notices were published. There has been no mention of their demise in the newspapers. But they were casualties just the same.

To get back into business, most of the butchers and neon manufacturers will need money, but most of them can't borrow at the banks. However, the Smaller War

SUPREME COMMANDER EISENHOWER remained the same smiling Ike, genial, simple, easy to talk with, but firm in his determination and strong in decision. About the only concession he made to his former habits was to leave his "goop suit" behind him and wear a uniform which his distinguished staff would consider more dignified.

He lived with his friend and naval aide, Lieutenant-Commander Butcher, in a small house adjoining Admiral Cunningham's, and chose the servants' quarters for his own when he entertained visitors. His little Scotty, Teleg, brought with him from London, was always at his heels, a faithful worshipper of his master. At the sound of his master's voice Teleg's tail wagged vigorously. The general called it his "sign language," a code which he clearly deciphered, like the wigwag of the Signal Corps.

Wherever the general went, Teleg was sure to go. During the Tunisian campaign he barely escaped being a war casualty. While stretching himself too far out of the window to observe the lines of soldiers moving toward the front, he fell out. A four-star general's car drew up to the roadside; an orderly hopped out, rescued the missing Teleg, and hurried on to restore him to his master.

"You'd better keep on guard," the general warned Teleg, "or you may be taken prisoner. You won't get treated as well in the German Army as we treat you in the American Army."

It was during these North African campaigns that General Ike received a new nickname from his intimate associates—Ikeus Africanus. This classical tribute was in recognition of his vast store of human knowledge. "There was nothing about Africa or the entire world that Ikeus Africanus didn't seem to know," one of his staff confides. "When we asked him about Hannibal's march to Italy he gave us a 10-minute extemporaneous lecture. Later I went and checked on his dates and facts. You know, he hadn't made a single mistake." Ike is happiest when with his soldiers at the front, where he is well known and liked by his men. He speaks the language of the troops.

"Hell, we'll change that!" he exclaims, instead of the more pompous version of what soldiers call "brass hats." They like his straightforwardness. It makes them feel he is one of them, just another doughboy.

IN an effort to unify the soldiers, Eisenhower told both British and American troops that if they could not get along together they would go home "on a slow boat, unescorted." He is tough, and yet understanding and tactful. He nipped all conflicts in the bud. When a British officer reportedly disparaged American troops, the general, as soon as he was informed, consulted the officer's superior, who was already on his way to clear the matter up. Before the day was over the matter had been settled and unity and mutual respect ran higher than before.

Things looked dark when the Germans were rushing supplies into Africa from Italy. The Allied air forces were paralyzed by bad weather; armies were bogged down in torrents of rain. They had been beset by supply difficulties, transportation by sea, and a thousand-and-one problems. Eisenhower was quick to place any American troops needed at the disposal of the British. It was then that the actual joining of the armies began, and not until after the British Eighth Army had taken Tripoli and won the supply race did Eisenhower relax.

This critical period welded the Americans and Britons together both in the field and at headquarters. Together, sharing the glory, they went on to victory. Eisenhower used his genius for co-ordination also in working with the French. Seeing the French fight without proper equipment or clothing, he quickly allocated some of his material to them and gave them a chance to participate in the Tunisian victory. By his great tact and by placing credit and responsibility with the right men he gained their respect as chief in name and action. His frankness and intelligence carried him through until he could make changes and give commands which the British Imperial General Staff approved without question.

THERE is a story told about the time General Marshall, coming from America, visited the North African front. He was appalled by the number of hours on Eisenhower's schedule and the enormous amount of work he was doing. Marshall entrusted an aide with the task of imposing a more leisurely schedule on Eisenhower.

Ike accepted the orders from his boss in Washington by coming to work the next day at 9:30 in the morning. His habit was to rise about sunrise and start to work. On the new schedule Ike took a long lunch instead of a snack; he left his office at 5 o'clock in the evening instead of working into the night. This new routine lasted exactly one day. The next morning Eisenhower was at his desk at daybreak to "make up for the lost time."

The aide who had been instructed by General Marshall to see that Eisenhower abided by the rules, was worried. He went to Marshall's aide and reported his failure.

"Hell," exclaimed Marshall's aide, "that's all right. Marshall never follows his own routine, anyhow."

Rental Cases To Federal Court

Four Sedalians Named In Them Filed By OPA

Four cases against Sedalians for alleged rent control violations were filed Thursday by Glen V. Graf, attorney for the enforcement department of the Kansas City district office of the Office of Price Administration, and will be heard before Judge J. C. Collet in federal court in Jefferson City at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, September 8.

Sedalians named as defendants in the petitions are J. L. Reine, charged with evasion; J. Ross Kindred, also charged with evasion; Mrs. Margaret O'Bannon, named for alleged overcharges, and Louisa Gregory, charged with failure to properly register and with turning off utilities.

The case against Reine involves property at 605 West Seventh street, which in 1943 rented for $27.50 and rental for which was reduced to $20 in January 1944, by the area rent office, according to Graf. The charge alleges that in addition to this rent the tenant, John H. Beck, was asked to pay $5 a month for rent of a barn, six and one-half miles north of Sedalia.

Claim Verbal Arrangement

The OPA report, made for the month of July, declares that such arrangement was made verbally and that no receipt was given for payment of the barn rental.

In the second case of alleged evasion, against Kindred, the renting of two apartments at 302 1/2 South Grand avenue, was under survey. Rent for one apartment, occupied by Capt. T. M. Weems, Jr., was reduced by the area rent office from $60 to $52.50 and the other apartment, rented to Maj. Phillip I. Eckberg, had the rent cut from $70 to $60 a month.

In the petition filed by Graf it is alleged that Weems was charged an additional $7.50 and Eckberg an additional $10 for special work and labor which the OPA examiners declare was not performed.

Treble damages, also in the amount of $50, are asked in the case of Mrs. O'Bannon, 1320 South Ohio avenue, who, it is alleged charged a tenant, William L. Cutler, $5.50 a week for a room and bath registered at $4 with the rent office.

It is stated in the petition against Louisa Gregory, 1624 South Montau avenue, that light, gas and water utilities, part of the housing accommodations to which the tenant was entitled to have use, were turned off after renting, that she was told by the area rent office to have the utilities service resumed, that she did not do so and that she was delinquent in registering within the required 30-day period. This explanation was made by Sam Harlan, rent control administrator in this area.

Town Purchased For $125,000

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Purchase of the entire town of Deweyville, Texas, near Port Arthur, for approximately $125,000 was revealed Friday by the Soltz Liquidation Sale Company.

Deweyville, the second Texas town to be acquired by the firm in the past few months, is comprised of the plant formerly operated as Newton County Lumber Company. It includes a railroad, 260 residents, large sheds and buildings, livestock and 1,000 acres of land.

Raps Use Of The Common Cup

TOPEKA, Kas., Sept. 2.—(AP)—"Deplorable," said Dr. R. M. Heilman of the Kansas board of health Friday, "Perfectly inexcusable."

He referred to a newspaper picture of a water tank truck parked at Lamar, Mo., yesterday to provide drinking water for some of the 12,000 per sons who attended notification ceremonies for Sen. Harry S. Truman, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

From the back of the truck hung public drinking cups—the objects of Dr. Heilman's uncomplimentary adjectives.

"Don't those people know cups like that might start an epidemic?" he asked. "Suppose a man with tuberculosis drank out of one of those cups, or a typhoid carrier?"

"Why, it's deplorable, in this day and age."

Dr. Heilman, head of the Kansas industrial hygiene division, said he had no desire to renew border warfare between neighboring states, but recalled that common drinking cups were outlawed in Kansas some 35 years ago as the result of a public health crusade by Dr. Samuel J. Crumrine.

"I'm surprised that the health authorities in Missouri would allow a thing like that," he added.

Offers Courtesy To Gov. Dewey

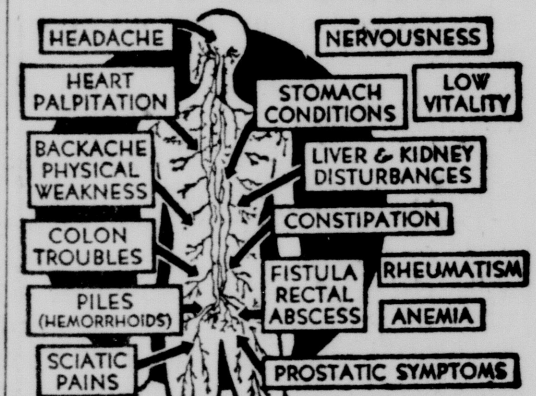

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Governor Kerr's Oklahoma hospitality stood apart Friday from his Democratic partisanship concerning the visit to the state Sept. 25 and 26 of another governor, Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Kerr told his press conference he would place at disposal of the Republican presidential nominee any facilities of the state that would "add to his comfort or welfare."

The New York governor will have use of a state highway patrol car if he needs or wants it, Kerr added.

Two Columns Of U. S. Troops Move Into Belgium Saturday

army was abandoning the robot bomb row along the channel coast all the way to Pas-De-Calais and beyond as British patrols popped up in the village of Pernes, 38 miles south of Dunkerque.

Dispatches from Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army driving on the Siegfried line to the east of Verdun said American patrols were up to the Moselle river and a bag of 1,200 prisoners indicated resistance was rising.

The Germans declared that these forces had lunged to the area of Thionville, on the Moselle just 11 miles short of the Reich border and well into Lorraine, which the enemy considers part of greater Germany since its annexation after the fall of France.

The same German broadcast said one armored column of this force had reached Longwy, two miles south of the border of the tiny Duchy of Luxembourg.

Thionville is 17 miles north of Metz, well through the old Maginot line, and within 20 miles of the outposts of the enemy's Siegfried line.

It was considered possible that American patrols already had appeared into Luxembourg, and there was no news from Sedan, where it was believed advanced elements had crossed into Belgium on the road to Prussia.

The British Second army on the west was racing for the Belgian frontier in the hope of heading off the Germans who have been launching robot bombs against southern England.

They drove 15 miles northeast of Arras to Douai, 14 miles from Belgium and 65 miles from Brussels.

Sieze Vimy Ridge

Racing through Flanders they seized Vimy ridge, north of Arras, where the Canadians won their great victory in 1917. Patrols reached Lens, 18 miles below the railway city of Lille and Arras, and Pernes, 38 miles south of Dunkerque and 40 miles south-east of Calais.

Enjoying a lull from the robot bombs, London felt that in view of these successes the worst of this plague was over. While the Germans still can fire from more distant launching ramps, the longer bomb run will give defenses a better chance to intercept them.

On the southeastern end of the front, the Third Army was driving for the old Lorraine capital of Nancy from St. Mihiel, 32 miles to the northwest, and the Germans were reported fleeing the city.

that "no one seems to care what an old man thinks."

Norris had never publicly indicated he had reconsidered his statement that his 1942 defeat amounted to a "repudiation of forty years of service" in congress.

From the time he first won a seat in the house of representatives in 1902—by a 181 vote margin—Norris was highly respected by both supporters and opponents for his unflinching integrity and faithfulness to his convictions. The people promoted him to the senate in 1912.

When he returned to his ten-room home here in 1942 he told his friends "my lips have never told a lie and my hands have never touched a bribe."

An advocate of simplified government, Norris had twice introduced bills to eliminate the electoral college, and in Nebraska conducted a one-man campaign which culminated in creation of the state's one-house legislature with a small membership.

Norris fought for conservation of natural resources and public ownership of hydro-electric power. One of his bitterest disputes was with forces favoring private ownership of Muscle Shoals, and he only recently, in a wire to the senate, expressed opposition to abolishment of the TVA revolving fund.

Norris was born on a Clyde, O., farm July 11, 1861 and began teaching school at 16. He began practicing law in Beatrice, Neb., in 1885 after studying at Baldwin Normal School, and Valparaiso (Ind.) university.

H. U. Hunt Chairman Of War Chest Drive

Heber U. Hunt, superintendent of the Sedalia public schools, has been appointed Pettis County chairman for the War Chest fund drive, which will be held in October. This county will cooperate with other counties in the state in the drive.

The funds are for the local welfare organizations, such as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, and the Day Nurseries, and also for the army, navy, war and USO agencies.

The recommendation for the appointment was made by I. H. Reed, president of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce.

he assured her," and I'll get you right back home."

Drove Out Of Town

They drove south on highway 65, according to the girl, to a location about three miles beyond Flat Creek Inn, then turned off onto a side road, and drove about a mile and a half when he stopped the car. It was the end of the road, the girl said.

On the way out there the young woman said she asked frequently where he was going, and his reply was that Mr. Johnson lived only a short distance further.

After stopping the car the man attempted advances, but was slapped by the girl, who left the car. He insisted he would bring her back to Sedalia, and would start at once, so she returned to the car. While backing the car it went to the side of the road and off near a culvert, and got stuck in the mud. He asked her to help him get it out, but instead she walked away, on back to the highway where she was picked up by a soldier's wife and brought to Sedalia. She immediately notified police officers.

Later, according to further reports, a man, answering the same description, went to a home in southwest Sedalia, and told the woman who answered the door he had been sent by her husband to make an examination.

Got Butcher Knife

"Oh no you haven't," she said, locking the door, and sending a child to lock the back door. She then armed herself with a butcher knife, but the intruder went to his car and got away at once.

Another call a few minutes later, from the same neighborhood reported the man had called at a home, told the woman he had been sent to examine her, that she had varicose veins, and he attempted to make an examination. He was ordered to leave, and one of the children sent to call a neighbor. As the man was leaving this house a neighbor attempted to get the license number on the car, but said it was bent so badly the number could not be read.

At a third home late Friday afternoon, according to another report to the police, he offered a woman $10. This was his third call during the week at this home. Frightened the woman told him to return Saturday morning, and he left. She called police and gave her report. A guard was kept at her home Saturday morning but the stranger failed to report.

Picks Up Child

The last report made to police Friday afternoon was from south Sedalia, where a man, believed to be the same, asked an 11-year old girl if she could direct him to the Katy shops. She said she could, and he offered her fifty cents if she would get in the car with him and show him the way. She did get in the car, but instead of driving towards the shops he took her to the country, attempting advances. The child screamed, whereupon he turned the car and brought her back to Sedalia.

Pre-School Group Meets

The Pre School Association of the Horace Mann school met Friday afternoon, September 1, at 2:30 o'clock, with Mrs. William Prowell presiding.

The meeting was opened with the group singing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" with Mrs. J. Earnest Morrow at the piano. Mrs. Lloyd Kennon gave the devotional.

Mrs. William Prowell was elected delegate to attend the State Convention, at Springfield, in October, and Mrs. Charles Arnest was elected alternate.

Rex Schrader reviewed an article from the State P. T. A. magazine, and Mrs. Charles Arnest reviewed the topic, "Young and Healthy," also from the P. T. A. magazine.

A social hour followed under the hospitality chairman, Mrs. A. F. Chambers, assisted by Mrs. Robert Brown.

Meeting Held By Underwriters

Saturday at the meeting of the Sedalia Life Underwriters it was announced through the educational committee that the state association with the Kansas City Association had inaugurated a forum with Dr. Herold Hunt, superintendent meeting with heads of the departments of school on life insurance.

The first forum October 15 is to be addressed by Paul Spicker, nationally known insurance publisher.

The chief topic of the meeting was "How Underwriters Could Cooperate With the GI Program of Veterans Administration as it Will Apply to Returning Servicemen."

F. A. Boysen, secretary, presented an outline of the government program.

Over Hundred At Baptist Meet

More than one hundred people attended and registered at the Baptist young peoples all day meeting which was held at the Mo. State Fair grounds Friday. Two-thirds of those attending were between the ages of four and seventeen. The remainder of the group were Sunbeam F. A. and R. A. counselors, W. M. S. leaders, pastors and others interested in young life.

Miss Lucille Carter, an approved state worker, had charge of the Missionary Bible study during the morning session. She brought forth the thoughts of man's usefulness when obedient to God; His disaster when disobedient. The auxiliary conferences were well attended.

A handicraft period was a feature of the day for the young folks. The Sunbeams made Indian hats and pin wheels; J. G. made a beautiful scrap book and J. A. A's. mounted pictures for the Baptist Italian Mission in Kansas City. The intermediate boys and girls completed a large map in color of the Baptist Home Mission field to be used in their missionary education.

Inspirational and vesper services of the afternoon were conducted by Rev. Hallie Rice, of the East Sedalia Baptist church, and Rev. Orval Woolery, pastor of Green Ridge and Flat Creek Baptist churches, also was guest speaker of the day.

The recreational periods were well planned and enjoyed by all, the games being; baseball, scavenger hunting and sight seeing tours.

Direct Navy Swing Band

Bill Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lynch, 1405 South Warren avenue in the Navy V-12, has recently organized a ten piece swing band which made its first appearance on August 25 in Albuquerque, N. M.

The new band, under the direction of the young Sedalian, is furnishing music for the University of New Mexico and navy social functions and for the fraternities and sororities. It has become very popular in the short time that it has been organized and has been mentioned in numerous articles in newspapers in Albuquerque and vicinity.

Bill Lynch was graduated from the Smith-Cotton high school in 1942 and was in the high school band all four years. His senior year he was selected at the most outstanding musician in the band, entitled him to membership in the "S" club. In addition to playing the clarinet and saxophone he is also a singer.

He entered service in July, 1943, and was first stationed at K. U. at Lawrence, Kas., and later was sent to Albuquerque, N. M., to the University of New Mexico, and is now in the Navy V-12 studying electrical engineering. He was voted a member of the Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Strong Army For Peacetime Is Urged

Legionnaires Are Told To Work For Its Maintenance

ENID, Okla., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Contending that a false sense of security among the American people before the war has cost thousands of lives on the battlefields, National Commander Warren G. Atherton of the American Legion today urged Legionnaires to work for maintenance of a strong peacetime army to discourage future aggression.

Speaking at the 26th Annual Oklahoma Legion convention, Atherton told the veterans that it is up to the American Legion to write into the international law a pact to keep the peace, not forgetting that there must be "a strong army to keep the pact."

He also recommended a rigid course in military training for all American youths as a second element to discourage aggression.

"Those international gangsters, Hitler and Tojo, know only one language. They don't understand pacts or treaties. They only respect armies and materials," Atherton declared.

"At the conclusion of hostilities following World War I the American people turned their backs on war, despite warning sounded by the American Legion. They decided to do everything with pacts and treaties. We had put out a great conflagration, put up our fire truck and cut the hose to pieces."

Legion Veterans At The Capital

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Aging American Legion veterans tonight crammed Jefferson City hotels to capacity and flowed over into tourist cabins as they gathered in the capital for their annual convention over the Labor Day weekend.

A. D. (Bud) Welsh, St. Louis baby carriage manufacturer who now is senior vice commander of the state Legion organization, was boomed for election as state commander to succeed Burnie B. Dunn of Jefferson City.

Fred Gehlken, 324 North Engineer avenue, arrested by the police Friday afternoon, was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail by Judge C. W. According to Gehlken's own admission he got into the car in which a soldier was asleep in the back seat and took the articles.

Government Lumber Put To Good Use

A U. S. BOMBER BASE, Marianas Islands — (Delayed)—(AP)—When Capt. Thomas E. Smith had a truck load of lumber piled near the GI tents at this base he had certain definite ideas as to its eventual use.

Atop the lumber pile he placed a sign "government property."

During the night all the lumber and even the sign disappeared. The captain, whose home is at Wadena, Minn., said nary a word to the GIs who had used it to floor their tents. That's what he wanted them to do with it in the first place.

WHERE ARE THE YANKS?

The long, mountainous, leg-shaped Italian peninsula extends southward from the body of Europe. Its rugged terrain has been helpful to the Nazis in their defensive warfare. Italy south of the Arno River is about the size of New York State; Sicily equals Vermont in area. Sardinia, Corsica, and Elba have also been liberated by the Allies. Naples, although at the latitude of New York City, is famed for its balmy, almost sub-tropical climate—the result of tempering south winds blowing from the Sahara in North Africa.

Sicily and the Tyrrhenian Coast of Italy

This is one of three articles supplementing the series "Where Are the Yanks?" published last winter and spring in the Demo-Crat-Capital. The articles have been prepared by the National Geographic Society to inform readers about the regions where American service men and women are stationed.

By the National Geographic Society

To the Yanks, the long peninsula of Italy is a surprise—stocking of varied weather, terrain, and people. Difficult geographical barriers kept regional areas separated, causing cultural development on one side of a mountain range to be quite different from that on the other side.

For centuries these barriers caused political disunity. Italy remained split up into small warring states, prey to foreign conquerors.

Weather, originating in the Alps or the Sahara, has kept climatic regionalism alive though Italy achieved political unity in 1870. The lesser development of the Adriatic coast is largely due to the inclement weather of its northeast-facing shoreline. The Tyrrhenian coast, facing southwest, has a climate tempered by the Sirocco, a warm wind blowing north from Africa.

Know Regions

Yanks who are fighting or stationed along this coast have come to know at first hand several of Italy's distinct regions—Sicily, Campania (Naples), Latium (Rome), and Tuscany.

In Sicily Yanks found a serene, desolate land of jumbled mountains, many crowded villages and towns with seemingly no economic reason for their existence, and occasionally a fertile green valley of citrus orchards, vineyards, or small farm plots. Central Sicily, with its sulphur mine tailings, is the dreariest part.

Sicilians, sometimes regarded as almost a distinct nationality, are a conglomerate race made up of Italian, Greek, Spanish, Norman, Arabian, and German strains. They have a fluid, easy-going manner, but are quick-tempered. Well-advanced politically, Sicilians were active in the 19th century fight for unification. Yanks in Sicily may desert their jeeps long enough to take a ride on the traditional two-wheeled, highly decorated, donkey-pulled carts. On the narrow sides of these carts appears the history of Sicily in original oil paintings. The favorite scenes in these "moving pictures" deal with the days of Norman occupation, when knights from Normandy ruled Sicily as well as England.

Sicily is about the size of Vermont, and is just as rocky and mountainous, but it supports 11 times as many people! Yanks are surprised to see small fields planted on hillsides with meager soil that would be considered wasteland in America. Its sub-tropical climate helps in supporting a heavy population.

Jumped To Salerno

From Sicily, the Yanks jumped to Salerno where they began their historic march up the western side of the peninsula. Though 200 miles north of Sicily, Salerno is far enough south to have a balmy, Mediterranean climate.

The Salerno plain, the Yanks' first beachhead on the European continent, is a southern extremity of the Campanian plain which surrounds Naples in a fertile agricultural crescent supporting the highest population density in Italy, and one of the highest in the world. Between the two alluvial plains lies the rocky, resort-spotted Sorrento peninsula, including the towns of Sorrento and Amalfi. Beyond its tip, is the glamorous Isle of Capri, where some fortunate service men have spent rest periods.

Campania is walled by the Apennines, that long, high, ever-present mountain system that forms the backbone of the Italian peninsula. They keep the cold north wind, called the bora, away from Naples and at the same time imprison the warm Sahara-born south wind. Wheat, olives, and grapes are the principal crops.

Few Farmhouses

Although southern Italy and Sicily are largely agricultural, they have few farmhouses. Instead of small farms, much of the land is in large estates. Hired farm workers live in towns and go daily to fields miles away. This practice causes rural areas to have a deserted aspect strange to Yanks.

A Yank invited into a farmer's house is likely to see a large family living in one or two rooms with pigs and fowls, and children wearing rock salt amulets to ward off the evil eye. A rich Neapolitan or Roman, however, might entertain him in the verdant courtyard of a palacelike home.

Most of Italy has been deforested. Bare mountains around river headwaters help account for the intermittent flooding and drying up of watercourses. Summers are exceedingly dry. With only a moderate year-round rainfall, southern Italy usually manages to be muddy for most of the other three seasons.

The Neapolitan's outlook on life is healthfully cheerful, and his buoyant nature has helped him through such trying periods as the past few years. Yanks on leave will witness spontaneous exhibitions of the tarentella—traditional dance of southern Italy—a lovers' quarrel and reconciliation set to the dance.

Punch-and-Judy Shows

Ageless marionette and Punch-and-Judy shows abound in Italy. Puppet-hero Naples is Scaramuccia, a quarrelsome, cowardly braggart. Live actors take part in the festivals held annually in many towns and cities. Background of most of these celebrations is religious. There are delicacies to eat, wine to drink, and dancing in the streets.

The beachhead at Anzio and the break-through at Cassino introduced the Yanks to the Province of Rome, variously called Latium and Lazio. The Roman Campagna, or plain of Rome, with the city set like a jewel amid its picturesque desolation, is the most important geographical feature of the province. In early Roman times this plain was fertile and fed the city. It was spoiled by roads and aqueducts, some of which are still in use.

After the fall of ancient Rome, drainage fell into disrepair and swamps gradually covered previously fruitful land. For centuries malaria depopulated the area. In 1871, Rome had only 229,000 inhabitants.

Health Problem Solved

Since the unification of Italy in 1870, drainage and reclamation works have solved the health problem, and partially restored the land to use. Rome, as capital of the country, has surpassed the million mark of ancient times. The Pontine Marshes, adjoining the Anzio beachhead to the south, was the last area to be drained. It was there that the junction was affected between patrols from Cassino and Anzio, in May, 1944.

The prewar metropolitan elegance of Rome was in direct contrast with the poverty of the surrounding country. Unlike the rich agricultural area around Naples, the plain of Rome is still largely given over to grazing of sheep and cattle. Cold and subject to snow in winter, the area suffers from such oppressive summer heat and drought that peacetime visitors were advised to avoid Rome between May and September. In spring and autumn the Tiber usually overflows.

The Roman citizen partakes of the characteristics of both the central and southern Italian. He prides himself on being descended from the ancient rulers of the world, and he is taller than most lowland Italians.

A Favored Region

North of Latium the Yanks entered Tuscany, and raced to the approaches of the Arno valley in five weeks after taking Rome. They found this hilly, olive and vineyard-covered land the most favored region encountered during their advance. It has a mild, agreeable climate, rich valleys, healthful, cultivated highlands, and prosperous manufacturing and trading cities.

The history of Tuscany and adjoining Umbria goes back to Etruscan times, 500 B. C., when the hill cities of west central Italy rivalled Rome. Recently captured Volterra, Cortona, Arezzo, Chiusi, and Perugia were members of the Etruscan Confederation and they still stand on their cliff-top heights, a faint reminder to Yanks from New Mexico of Southwest Indian villages built atop mesas for protection.

Perugia, Siena and the Arno Valley cities of Pisa and Florence became great art centers in medieval and Renaissance days. Florence, still a large city, is second only to Rome as a center of Italy's culture. Pisa's many art treasures are obscured in public interest by the famous Leaning Tower.

Hills Cultivated

The Arno river, temporary German defense line in front of the so-called Gothic Line, drains a valley largely devoted to cattle grazing and horse breeding. The hills on either side of the valley are intensively cultivated, producing olives, grapes, mulberry leaves (for silkworms) and subsistence crops.

The land between Pisa and the sea has been filled in by silt from the Arno's floodings. For a while in the Middle Ages the city-state of Pisa was the western world's greatest naval power. Now Livorno (Leghorn) is the port of the region.

South of the Arno, a succession of smaller rivers reach the Tyrrhenian sea, each with a small coastal plain which in the past was infested with malarial mosquitoes, and still is comparatively depopulated and unproductive. The Ombrone plain is often referred to as the Maremma, a name notorious for its centuries-old association with the dread disease of chills and fevers.

On the whole, Tuscany has a healthful climate. The interior was especially agreeable to Italy's visitors. Tuscans are amiable and courteous, and of slender build. Their dialect has become the general language of Italian writing and conversation due to its use by Dante and Petrarch, and to its graceful expression and purity of idiom.

Thickly Inhabited

The Italian boot south of the Arno river line is slightly larger in area than New York. Before the war it had about four million more inhabitants than the Empire State.

Italy's soil has been a stage for war for 2,500 years. Her conflicts have ranged from family feuds to great campaigns of the powers, from tribal exterminations of the ancients to the pres-wrecked Catania, Messina, Reggio Calabria and many other towns. The Sedalia (Mo.) Democrat and Capital, Sunday Morning, September 3, 1944

Sedalian Well Remembers Hail Storm

When Mrs. A. M. Parks of 402 East Third street, almost 81 years old, read in Wednesday evening's Democrat of the recent hailstorm in Pueblo, Colo., the worst in 57 years of weather bureau records there, she recalled a hailstorm experience in that state which has remained with her, through the years, as a vivid impression. Checking dates, she deduced it must have been that very storm of 1887.

It was really quite an adventure—but one which ended tragically by costing the lives of a cowboy, pony and a team of horses.

During that year, Mrs. Parks (then Mrs. Charlie Hill) and husband set out from Lamar with wagon and team on a five-months journey to benefit Mr. Hill's health. Accompanying them were Mr. and Mrs. Howe, Mr. Hill's brother and his wife, now deceased. Wending their way along the road they were joined, like the Canterbury pilgrims, by other travelers, and they rode along together, enjoying each other's company and friendship. An ox wagon and team, with coops of chickens tied on behind, was a part of the procession.

In Colorado
They were in Colorado on the south side of the Arkansas river, five miles from the nearest house, when the storm struck. The frightened horses broke loose from the wagons and Mr. and Mrs. Hill's team swam the Arkansas river. Finally, by laborious methods which necessitated men, women and horses crossing the Grenada river, then a veritable trap of quicksand, they reached a ranch. By that time, when traveling on level surface, water and hail reached the hubs of the wagon wheels.

The next day a cowboy from the ranch took a pony and successfully crossed the treacherous river to bring back a team which it had been impossible to bring the preceding day. Mrs. Parks will never forget the sight of the cowboy, pony and team fighting for life in midstream on the return trip, losing, and finally disappearing completely.

After this experience, the group progressed to Trinidad and Springfield, Colo., oftentimes sleeping in dugouts. At one point en route they stopped at a ranch which boasted 80,000 head of cattle.

It will be impossible for the young man to accept the offer. Dick plays the French horn and is a member of the Sedalia Symphony orchestra.

Smith-Cotton Tigers Get Grid Togs

Football Practice To Start Tuesday; First Game With Marshall

Football practice for the Smith-Cotton Tigers will get underway Tuesday afternoon, according to an announcement made Saturday afternoon by Coach John Ligon. The team is expected to be ready to make the first squad this week.

Three Coaches Handle Team

Three coaches will handle the team this season, Ligon as head coach taking over the boys in tackle and guard positions, Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow will handle the boys working in the backfield while Coach Albert Steiner will tutor the boys out for ends and center. This system has been worked for the past several years with success.

Friday afternoon Coach Ligon issued twenty grid uniforms to boys who were out for football in 1940, and many of the first and second team lettermen were present to get equipment. Monday it is expected approximately thirty boys who have indicated their intention to try for the squad will be on hand to get equipment.

Two and a half weeks of hard practice will be experienced by the boys, as the first game on the 1944 schedule is that against the Owls of the Marshall high school, the game to be played at Marshall. This game is on the schedule for September 21, Thursday.

A Medium Weight Squad

Smith-Cotton's team is expected to be about medium in weight, while the experience of the lads is better than anticipated. Many of the boys having had excellent opportunities from last season. Indications are the team will run on an average of about 150 pounds.

Gordon Capes, three-year letterman, has reported back and received his uniform. Capes started his football career as a freshman and this is his senior year. Capes plays in the backfield and has been trained at halfback and quarterback.

Joe Herrick, letterman, senior, 140; Bill Morris, senior, 140; Wayne Shaw, junior, 150; working for guard positions.

Alfred Hall, second team letterman, senior, 140; Calvin "Cal" Rodgers, sophomore, 140, trying for center position.

Seniors Out for Backfield

The backfield material consists of Gordon Capes, 3-year letterman, senior, 150; Don Johnson, letterman, senior, 150; Raymond Harmon, letterman, senior, 150; Bob Rayl, letterman, senior, 160; Donnie Donahue, sophomore, 160; and Edgar Mehler, second team letterman, senior, 140.

However, the listing of the above names does not mean the boys reporting Monday do not have an opportunity to "bounce" some of the old heads from their respective positions. Coach Ligon indicated.

Keithley who played center position in 1943 is due to a switch to tackle, because of his weight, it is in discussing any changes which might be in store for some of the "old heads."

The schedule for the Tigers calls for the first home game with the Kemper Military Academy on Friday September 29.

Lieut. Tulman Wins Officers Golf Tourney

Willets And Neef To Play Final 18-Holes Of Their Match Today

The finals of the SAAF Officers division of the Sedalia Country Club Golf tournament has been completed with Lieutenant Tulman defeating Lieutenant R. M. Willets eleven up with ten holes to play in their thirty-six hole match. Today the finals of the Class "A" division will be completed with A. R. Scott meeting Dr. J. W. Beger.

Willets Now Five Up

In the championship flight, E. M. Willets and Emil Neef will play their final 18 holes starting at 10:30 o'clock this morning. At the conclusion of the first eighteen holes played Saturday Willets had Neef 5 up. The winner of this match is slated against Harold Yunker for the championship of the Sedalia Country Club.

The Tulman-Willets match which was expected to be a fight to the finish fizzled out when Tulman shot a hot round on the first eighteen holes and jumped into what was declared a safe lead to maintain through until the mark was reached with Tulman leading eleven with ten more holes to be played.

Boger Vs. Scott Today

The match between Dr. Boger and Mr. Scott was to have been played the past week but because of a slight illness Dr. Boger was unable to compete and the match set down for today. This is expected to be a very close match in as much as both players have defeated their opposition by close scores up to the finals.

Starting this week the Country Club is sponsoring a 72-hole handicap tournament in which all players must play 18 holes of golf each week. The only scores to count are those where there are three or more players participating.

Free-For-All Wins At Washington Park

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—John March's Free For All, one of the nation's two leading contenders for the two-year-old championship of 1944, registered his fifth consecutive victory today in capturing the $60,750 Washington Park futurity by a length and a quarter.

Icangetit, owned by Henry Tilulski of Chicago finished second, with Free For All's stablemate, Errand, third. Sir Bim, owned by Don Ameche of radio and screen fame was fourth.

Ridden by Otto Grophs, Free For All flashed past the judges' stand the winner, running the six furlongs over a ground track in 1:13 1/5.

By his victory, Free For All added $47,850 to his earnings which now has reached $109,375. With only four interests represented, the management ruled out show wagering and the entry was $2.60 to win and $2.00 to place. Icangetit was $2.60 to place.

Sport Scraps

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

PROSPECTS for a good football team for Smith-Cotton this season "looks good", at least that was what Coach John Ligon had to say Saturday after he had issued some twenty suits to boys who played last year, or who tried out for the team last season. The teams going to be of medium weight, but experience is expected to make up for the difference in a heaving and light team.

So coaching has been the working of a three-way combination in coaching of the Tigers in the past few years, that again three coaches will handle the squad. Ligon as head coach will handle the tackles and guards. Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow will take over the boys in the back field, while Coach Albert Steiner will instruct the ends and centers.

In coaching the squad in this manner more attention can be given the boys in the various conditions, more can be accomplished, and a better team can be built. The record of the team in the past few years has been a sample of how this coaching style has helped the boys.

Also it gives the coaches a far better opportunity to look over the entire field of grid recruits, and some player who might be a whiz of a footballer will not be overlooked as easily as where one coach handles the whole team. At the end of each day the three coaches compare notes and discuss the possibilities of assigning a boy to another position where he might be better fitted, if he doesn't look so good in one position but still has the "stuff" to make a good player.

EACH football season the anticipation of a large number of boys trying out is always looked forward to by the coaches, each season the large turnout drops to a smaller number, but this season, all indications are there will be at least fifty out for the team. This is based on the discussion among the boys, and the expressed desires of many boys to get themselves in physical shape and to harden up.

A good number of boys will turn their eighteenth birthday midway and they expect to receive their calls for Selective Service soon after registration. Many of these boys are confident the hardening they will get in football will be a benefit when they report for army life.

Practically every boy who has gone from high school into the service has had a "hardening up" benefit from their football, basketball or track workouts. Incidentally every one of these boys have done right good in the military career as well.

ALL the talk about where the Army-Navy football game was going to be held was settled last week when it was announced, the game will be held down this season to a home-town shop. Evidently the Army and Navy decided there was still a war going on and that the same restrictions that existed two previous years should prevail again in 1944.

The game will be played December 2 at Annapolis, a town of about 16,000, and tickets will be limited to residents of Annapolis and those living within 10 miles of the community. Yes, and the pre-war parades and colorful ceremonies will also be omitted.

Only a week ago Rep. Sammy Weiss, of Pennsylvania ordered that this year's game be staged in all its pre-war glory. He argued that a billion dollars worth of War Bonds could be sold at the game, but this didn't have much effect on Secretary Forrestal of the Navy, who made the "home-town" announcement.

CHANGING of season's from baseball to football seems to be getting in the hair of one Frank Farmer, one of the boys who sets up the type of the sports page. Frank told me Saturday he just couldn't keep figures in his head, box scores, line scores, now scores to be coming by quarters. Any kind words passed to him will be appreciated.

Browns Drop Third Game To Detroit

Have One-Game Edge On Yankees And The Tigers For Pennant

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns dropped their third straight game to the Detroit Tigers tonight, 6-3, leaving them with a one-game lead over the Tigers and the Yankees who are tied for second.

After the Browns took the lead in the seventh, the Tigers came back with two runs in both the eighth and ninth innings.

Rufe Gentry, the Tigers' starting pitcher was knocked out in the Browns' seventh inning. He was followed by Renshaw who in turn was jerked in favor of John Gorsica. Frank Overmire took over in the ninth. Gorsica was the winning pitcher and Denny Galehouse who started but failed to finish was the loser.

New York Yanks Remain In Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The New York Yankees remained in the thick of the American League pennant race by defeating the lowly Washington Senators 3-1 today, before 8,654 paid.

Nick Etten singled home two runs in the first inning and John Lindell batted in another in the third, with a fly, to account for all the Yankee runs.

Organize A New Grid Conference

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Organization of the All-America football conference, a new coast-to-coast professional football league sponsored by "men of millionaire incomes," was announced officially today by Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune and prime organizer of the new loop which will begin operations next year.

Ward said the league will include clubs in eight or possibly 10 of the country's key cities, with seven franchises already granted.

Owners of franchises, Ward disclosed, were Chicago, John L. Keeshin, president of a trucking concern; New York, Mrs. Lou Gehrig, widow of the famous Yankee baseball player, and Ray J. Ryan, oil company president; Baltimore, Cmdr. Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion; Buffalo, James Breuil and Will Bennett, oil company executives, and Sam Cordavano, construction company head; Cleveland, Arthur McBride, taxicab magnate; Los Angeles, actor Don Ameche and Christy Walsh, former newspaper syndicate director; and San Francisco, Anthony J. Morabito and Allan E. Sorrell, co-owners of a lumber terminal concern, and Ernest J. Turre.

Cards Accept World Series Mail Orders

But Heed To Rulings Of The ODT On Their St. Louis Area Only

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals announced today they will accept mail orders beginning Tuesday for world series tickets to games in which they will be the home club.

But in a long list of instructions for applicants, the club made it clear that in compliance with an Office of Defense Transportation (ODT) request, it will not accept orders from persons living outside Metropolitan St. Louis.

Only mail orders will be accepted, each must be limited to two seats and be accompanied by a cashier's check in the amount of $18.75 for one reserved seat at three games, or $37.50 for two seats, including all taxes. No reserved seats will be sold for any game, and no box seats will be available.

Of the approximately 25,000 reserved seats in Sportsman's Park, only about half will be available to mail order buyers.

No orders will be opened until September 7, the club explained, so that all persons whose requests are received by that time will have an equal chance.

Orders should contain only the name and address of persons to whom the tickets should be mailed, with name and address printed plainly—no requests for specific seats.

The series will open in St. Louis, Wednesday, Oct. 4, the Cardinals being the home club for games one, two and six of the Browns win the American League pennant. If a team other than the Browns win, the Cardinals will be the home club for games, one, two and three.

If You Don't Succeed Then Try Some Golf

PROVO, Utah, Sept. 2.—(AP)—If at first you don't succeed—try something else.

The fish in a Provo canyon stream showed no interest in the lures tossed to them by J. W. Ridd, Magna, Utah. So Ridd and a friend gave up and motored to Provo golf club. On the 203-yard No. 3 hole, Ridd got a hole in one.

Merchants To Meet Alcoa Here Today

Windsor Will Play Merchants Here On Monday Labor Day

The Sedalia Merchants baseball club will meet the Alcoa team Sunday afternoon on the Liberty park diamond at 2:30 o'clock. This club was defeated earlier in the season by the Merchants by a score of 5 to 2 and last season the two clubs split two games.

The visitors have the same pitcher who pitched last season for them a big righthander by the name of Stockwell. He recently pitched a two hit game against the Jefferson City Twedies and is coming to avenge the earlier season defeat. The visitors have a young club with lots of hustlers and with Stockwell on the mound promise plenty of competition for the Merchants. Lefty Hal Green will be the locals' hurler with Weller doing the catching.

Monday, Labor Day, the Merchants will meet the Windsor club at 2:30 o'clock while little is known of the visitors it has been said that they have a hustling young club and will afford the fans plenty of good baseball in their debut against the Merchants.

Probable lineup for the Merchants: Livengood 1b, Criddle 2b, Ellsworth ss, Woolford 3b, Morris lf, Shirley cf, Nichols or Williams rf, Weller c and Green p.

Lineup for the Windsor team for Monday's game will be Schweitzer ss, Staples lf, Means c, Newbill rf, Greene 2b, Robinson 1b, J. Schweitzer 3b, Lvan cf, McMillen p.

The Nashville Open Lead To Byron Nelson

Bob Hamilton Is In Second Spot With 66; McSpaden Has a 68

NASHVILLE, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Byron Nelson, the nerveless tee titan of Toledo, fashioned a seven-under par 64 at the first round lead in the $10,000 Nashville invitational golf tournament.

Grooving his shots in intermittent wind and rain, the blond "mechanical man" clipped three strokes off regulation figures on the front side and four off coming back for a course record 34-30 that approached a perfect game of golf.

Except for a cantankerous putter that four times failed him on assignments of less than six feet, Nelson might have come in with a 60.

In close pursuit of the game's leading money winner came husky Bob Hamilton Evansville, Ind., the P. G. A. champion, with a 35-31-66.

Three strokes back with a 67 was Toney Penna, colorful little pro of Dayton, O., and bracketed with 68's four shots out of first place, where Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia, who is level with Nelson in tournament victories this year; Lonard Dodson of Kansas City and Sgt. E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the Little Rock, Ark., hostmaster who is now at Wright Field in Dayton, O.

Nelson, playing with cold deliberation and monotonous steadiness, putted for birdies on every green except two. Flawless off the tee and deadly with his irons, the former Texas caddy knocked in seven birdies.

Hamilton, hitting his irons well and putting better than Nelson, had a single bogie and six birdies. Ed Furgol of Birmingham, Mich., winner of the All-America amateur championship this week at Tam O'Shanter, took a one-over 72.

The second 18 holes will be played tomorrow with the final 36 set Monday.

In addition, Ward said, prominent business men in Detroit, Philadelphia and Boston are seeking franchises for those cities.

He said organization of the new league was started several months ago and was completed during the last two days at a meeting of club owners here.

AUTO CLUB'S 12TH ANNUAL SCHOOL SAFETY POSTER

Schools Open!

DRIVE SAFELY

Member of the Missouri Automobile Club of Missouri

R. C. Lippard, Sedalia District Manager for the Automobile Club of Missouri, today announced the Auto Club's twelfth annual September School Opening Safety Campaign to protect school children going to and from school. The campaign this year features the slogan, "SCHOOL'S OPEN. DRIVE SAFELY," on colored posters which show in silhouette the figures of a boy and two girls stepping from the curb on the way to school. The colored posters are being erected at important street intersections where drivers may see them.

"This is the twelfth year the club has staged this special campaign to remind drivers to use extra caution to prevent accidents to children, especially those who are entering school for the first time," Mr. Lippard asserted.

Narrow Shift On Stocks Saturday

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The drive of the Allies toward Hitlerland and the chances of a quick victory continued to prop peace stocks during the past week, as throughout the month just ended, but many market leaders were depressed by industrial reconversion confusion.

Exceptionally narrow shifts were the rule with activity in most of the five sessions well under the million-share figure. Utilities held well, some of the motors revived late Friday and rails maintained their balance as further heavy debt reductions of prominent roads were disclosed. Aircrafts firmed at the last on the idea they were oversold. Postwar specialties, however, gave the best account of themselves.

Principal securities exchanges in the United States and Canada observed their final summer Saturday suspension today and will remain closed through labor day.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .1 of a point at 55 for the week. The net advance for August was .3 of a point.

Land Bank Eliminates All Its Loan Fees

Mr. H. L. Shirley, secretary-treasurer of the Sedalia National Farm Loan association, announced this week that in the future the association will not collect any Federal Land Bank loan application or loan closing fees in connection with either Federal Land Bank or Land Bank Commissioner loans.

In a letter to Mr. Shirley, advising him of the new policy which materially reduces the borrowers cost of land bank and commissioner loans, Walter H. Droste, president of the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, said, "This elimination of all land bank and commissioner loan fees is a further service to new borrowers and will represent a worthwhile saving to future applicants. It is made possible in part by economies in bank operations, and in this farmers' cooperation credit system it is the policy always to pass savings on to the farmers who own and use the association and the bank."

Break In Heavy Trade On Grain

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Grain futures prices tumbled in a heavy trade today and the sell-off carried all deliveries except September wheat and barley and December rye to new seasonal lows.

The break developed when an accumulation of overnight selling orders, attributed to indications the war in Europe may soon end, came into all pits at the opening.

Prices rallied slightly when shorts took their profits after mid-session but the upturn brought another flood of offerings and again the trend turned down.

At the close wheat was 1/4 to 1/2 lower than yesterday's finish, September $1.55. Oats were off 1/4 to 1/2, September 63 1/2-1/4. Rye was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, September $1.02 1/2-1.03. Barley was off 1/4 to 2/5, September $1.09.

"Under the guise of Patriotism Many Practices have Flourished"

All of us who call ourselves men are patriots... men who will sacrifice whatever is needed to give our fighting forces the material they need to bring them home safely and as soon as humanly possible.
But doesn't it burn you up to have some person in a position of authority and trust try to take away your God-given rights under the guise of "patriotism."

There Are Some Rights Left For All Of Us—

The people of Sedalia and America still have certain rights and freedoms... and one of these rights is to purchase where you please. For instance, if you need a tire you do not need to tell anyone where you intend to purchase it... that is your business and your business only—as long as you purchase the tire with a certificate and from a registered tire dealer

Your right to a tire certificate is based only on your eligibility... where you purchase and from whom is your business and don't let any would-be "patriot" tell you it isn't.

Three Of GOP Governors In Broadcasts

Charge Made Of 'Pressure Groups' On Democrats

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Republican governors of Kansas, Pennsylvania and Minnesota Friday night called the Democratic administration the tool of "pressure groups," accused Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Harry S. Truman of inconsistency and termed the new deal "name-calling hate-making and backward-looking."

The three governors were speakers on the second of a series of broadcast programs, tonight over NBC, which the Republican national committee is sponsoring as "a prelude to Gov. Thomas E.
Dewey's opening campaign address at Philadelphia Sept. 7."

Gov. Andrew Schoepel of Kansas spoke from Kansas City, Mo., Gov. Edward Martin of Pen-sylvania from Harrisburg, Pa.,
and Gov. Edward J. Thye of Minnesota from Minneapolis.

Gov. Schoepel, bringing the "pressure group" charge, said:

"At this particular time, we have a new pressure group which looms large on the new deal political horizon and seems all powerful in its council. This group to which I refer is called the Political Action Committee. It has as its head Sidney Hillman. It takes its doctrines direct from Earl Brow-der, this Earl Browder-Sidney Hillman political action committee is not democratic. It is made in the image of nothing that is American. It is an import, an item by item, chapter and verse import of the fatal political doctrines of Europe, which time and time again destroyed Europe's freedom and everything else worthwhile."

"Hungry For Votes"
"x x x They want a fourth term administration because they want a government in Washington that is indebted to them up to their ears. And they expect to collect on that debt."

Governor Martin asserted that since his nomination Senator Truman had not repeated his statement that the war might be lost in Washington because of "red tape and bureaucratic waste" because when he made it "he was only a United States senator bent on winning the war," while now he is "a candidate hungry for votes."

"I wonder," Martin said, "what he would say if votes were not his chief concern about this week's tragic collapse of the War Production Board, the most important civilian agency for speeding victory x x x."

Governor Thye quoted Dewey's statement—"America is young and does not know defeat"—and praised his political doctrine and "vision for the future of America."
"What a welcome relief it is,"
he said, "after the name-calling, hate-making, backward-looking talk of recent years."

Mrs. West Loses Purse And Bonds

Mrs. Rolla West of LaMonte lost a purse and contents, including war bonds, while shopping in Kansas City Thursday at Sears, Roebuck and Co., when she laid the pocketbook down to examine a garment.

In the purse, she said, was $7,
two $25 war bonds and two $50 war bonds.

Another out-of-town shopper,
Mrs. Nina Deaura of Parkville, lost the contents of a purse while at the Jones store Thursday. The raided purse, which contained three $75 war bonds in addition to $130, was left on a counter where she had placed it while inspecting merchandise.

Meeting Likely Be In Quebec

Churchill And FDR To Confer Without Delay

By Alex Singleton
LONDON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will meet soon to plan the shift of American and British might from Europe, where they now fight victory in the near future to the Pacific for a joint effort to crush Japan.

The meeting probably will be held this month at Quebec, it was disclosed Friday, and may be followed after Germany's final capitulation by another session with Premier Joseph Stalin sitting in to discuss Russia's role in the Pacific war as well as the future of Europe.

Roosevelt and Churchill met in Quebec in August of last year to approve the master plan for the invasion of the continent. Not until these plans had been partly carried out in the organizing of men and materials did the two leaders spread them out before Stalin.

This time it is different. In the far eastern war it will be the American and British forces, backed by combined air and naval forces of unquestioned superiority, which will have the initial task of softening up the enemy. In the European war the Red army had this job.

Time To Gather Strength
Furthermore, because Russia may need time to gather strength after her tremendous and long struggle in the west, it is likely that Stalin will bide his time before throwing in his chips with the Allies in the far eastern war, especially since Japan has posted some of her best troops near the any interior surface.

LABOR'S ANSWER

ON THIS Labor Day, the might of American production is making itself felt on every War Front. Victories in Italy, France, Russia, and the Pacific have been made possible by united effort on the part of labor and our fighting forces.

THE decision of Free Americans to devote this Labor Day to "war production as usual" exemplifies the patriotism and loyalty of working men and women, and is America's answer to the Axis claim that we are disorganized and at war with one another.
